"STANDARD LOAF" MUST NOW BE SOLD IN ALBERTA

Following New Year's Day every standard loaf of bread sold in Alberta cities and towns must weigh 20 oz., according to word issued to bakers throughout the province by Government authorities.

The new provincial regulations affecting the trade in bread provide that bakery premises must be passed upon either by the local health board where such is established or in unorganized territory by the provincial board of health before a license can be granted. Provision is made for the issue of a temporary permit in case of need.

The regulations govern sanitary conditions in bakeries, handling of supplies, care of bread in stores and other details. They provide that "no person shall sell bread subject to the condition that the purchaser may return same, and no person who has sold any bread shall take back or exchange any bread previously sold to him by a distributor."

Penalty for the violation of the regulation is a fine of not less than $10 and not more than $100 for a first offence, and not less than $25 and not more than $200 for any subsequent offence. Alternative jail terms are provided.

LAUNCH CAMPAIGN TO AID DOMINION SCOUT MOVEMENT

Governor-General Will Speak On Radio Friday Night Urging Support.

Launching a campaign to raise funds for the extension of the Boy Scout movement in Canada, His Excellency the Governor-General will address a vast audience Friday evening at 8.55 o'clock, when he speaks on "Scouting" over the coast-to-coast network of the Canadian Radio Commission.

Speaking in his capacity of Chief Scout, the Earl of Bessborough will give a brief outline of what the scout movement means to Canadians, both young and old, and will ask for wide and generous support on the part of citizens in all sections of Canada.

Various projects will be undertaken during the campaign, which will get underway some time early in February, to raise sufficient money to finance Canadian Scouts and their activities for the next five years. During that period no other appeal will be made for funds, except small local appeals from time to time for some specific undertaking.

At the present time, Canada has an active Scout force of 60,000 vigorous, self-reliant young men and boys. Of that number the names of 6,200 are inscribed on the Alberta rolls. Under guidance of Provincial Commissioner J. H. Woods and a large group of trained leaders, the movement is forging ahead here, as in other provinces, states and countries of the world.

Drawing attention to the fact that Alberta has the highest enrollment per capita of any province in the Dominion, Col. Woods said: "We have here a force that is being trained in citizenship through ideals and precepts—a body whose usefulness and opportunities it is for us to extend. There is no work open to the efforts of young men and women, and no work more worthy of the support of older men and older women than this, the work of Boy Scouts."

Statesmen in all parts of the world have lent their support to the Scout movement. During one of his public speeches, Lord Willingdon, a former Governor-General of Canada, characterized it as a "younger League of Nations," and the most hopeful organization to banish the terror of future warfare.

Alberta will be asked to do her share next month in raising funds to finance the new Scout "five-year plan. Those interested in the movement are convinced that generous assistance will be forthcoming.

A CARTOONIST'S SUGGESTIONS

G. Fry, of Hillcrest, is a cartoonist of no mean ability. Several appeared following the musical festival in the Blairmore Enterprise, the latest depicts various ways in which the festival might be improved. Novelty features are suggested which would cause an uproar among a staid festival committee, and the most startling suggestion is that as an interlude in the program a literary contest between The Enterprise and The Journal be staged, with Editor Bartlett and ourselves in the ring, with the adjudicator as third man. No marks, cups or quarter are to be given. With such a long reach as "Bart" possesses, our only chance in a contest of that nature would be to make a rush in below the belt, which would disqualify us immediately.—Coleman Journal.

A concert will be staged in the Oddfellows' hall at Bellevue on the night of Friday next, January 18, in aid of the boys of the Frank west camp hockey club. The concert will be followed by dancing.

OFFICIAL OPENING OF B.E.L. CLUB ROOMS

The official opening of the new B.E.L. club rooms took place on Friday night last, in the form of a smoker concert, which was attended by two hundred members of the Legion, many from Bellevue and Coleman being present.

The chair was occupied by J. Angus McDonald, who introduced Mr. G. Pelley, of Calgary, the provincial secretary. Mr. Pelley spoke at considerable length and was well received by his audience. Other speakers included Mr. J. E. Gillis and Mr. S. G. Barman. Musical numbers of very high order were rendered by the Blairmore Male Voice Choir, who were repeatedly encored. Songs by Ed. Womersley, Bob Jordan (of Bellevue), Charlie Sartoris, Constable Johnson, James Gray and others were well received and immensely enjoyed. The programme opened with solemn invocation by Roach Oliver, and concluded with the singing of the National Anthem.

The new premises are well appointed to serve the purposes of the Legion. The large beer hall is one of the finest in the district. In addition there are committee rooms, cloak rooms and card rooms, as well as a large rest parlor in front. The building was erected by Sartoris & Bell, and reflects credit upon their ability as builders.

HOCKEY! HOCKEY!

Blairmore is to play at Medicine Hat on the 26th of January, according to schedule, and we understand that because our team is being so poorly supported, it will be difficult for them to make the grade financially.

Only a few years ago, Blairmore was noted for their interest in hockey, to such an extent that it was not only to be expected that all games at the arena would be well patronized, but it became an easy matter to even load our population onto a special train and travel a hundred miles or more to see this greatest of winter games.

For some reason or other, hard to understand, this interest has dwindled to such an extent that the receipts at local hockey games are not nearly sufficient to pay expenses. Depression is not altogether to blame, for it is known that regularly there are just as many poor homes represented as the well-to-do.

One result will be, and it is inevitable unless the local public make up their minds to turn out in greater numbers, that should Blairmore enter the provincial finals all games will have to be played elsewhere where people are more enthusiastic.

Coleman, Bellevue, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat are all strongly behind their respective teams. Why not Blairmore?

At the game here last night, there was nearly as many Bellevueites as supporters from our own town; while at Bellevue and Coleman for the last two games, at least, Blairmore's representatives among the fans could be loaded on a Ford truck.

What will the New Year do for you?

What will it do for me?

Will it break the chain that is forged for gain,

And our captive souls set free?

Will it bring the dawn of a better day,

And an end of degrading fear?

Will our troubles cease and our dreams of peace

Come true with a good New Year?

What will the New Year do for you?

What will it do for me?

Will it fan the spark that has pierced our dark,

And respond to our earnest plea

For work for our idle hands to do,

And a place in the worker's sphere?

Will it end the dole that destroys the soul,

And so be a good New Year?

What will the New Year do for you?

What will it do for me?

Will the men who lead see our crying need,

And a new square deal decree?

Will youth find a place in the march of life?

As the old year's end draws near?

Do we dare to think that we're on the brink

MAKING THE YEAR BEAUTIFUL

The story is told of a girl who looked thoughtfully at the new calendar she was hanging on the wall and said, "It's going to be a beautiful year. I know it's going to be a beautiful year."

"But the year ahead is long and untold. Many hard and disturbing things may happen. How can you be so sure that the year will be beautiful?" asked her friend.

"Oh, the year is long, I know," returned the girl, "but a day isn't long. I'm going to see to it that each day gets something fine and beautiful into it. Then I shall add my days together and have a beautiful year. Easy, isn't it?"

Patients Like Doctor To Show Personal Interest In Them
When he exhorted the medical students to remember that patients are human beings Sir John Ross Bradford earned the layman's gratitude.

In these days of intense specialization and dark complexity of medical science it may not be the doctors' fault that patients sometimes feel that the old human relation has vanished and the sufferer becomes only a case.

Old Fort Montgomery

Belongs To United States And Once Called "Fort Blunder"

The fortification known as "Fort Blunder" was started in 1816 at Rouses Point, N.Y., under the supervision of a United States engineer. The plan of the fort was octagonal. It was to be 10 bastioned and occupy about three-fourths of an acre. The walls were to be about 30 feet high. It was believed that the fort would be of great strategic value, but in 1818 it was found that the fort was located within the limits of Canada, and work was abandoned. It was known for many years as Fort Blunder. By the Webster treaty of 1842 the fort was ceded to the United States.

Locate New Stars

Super-Giant Stars Detected By Infra-Red Photographic Plates

Detection of a clan of 20 super-giant stars by use of infra-red photographic plates which "see" heat, was reported to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The discovery indicates that the heavens are probably inhabited by large numbers of daily glowing, gigantic suns, whose size the eye and ordinary photography have missed.

All 20 stars have been known many years, but their ordinary, visible light gave no indication of unusual size. All are "long-period variables," stars whose visible light and heat waxes over periods of several months.

Lest We Forget

War Film Designed To Bring Canadians The Lesson Of The Futurity Of War

While the government cannot be said to have "gone Hollywood," it is nevertheless true that cabinet ministers now appreciate the problems attendant upon evolving a title for a moving picture.

A recent meeting of the privy council beheld the unusual spectacle of the nation's administrators seriously worried and sucking their pencils as they tried out various titles for the film shortly to be produced under government sanction. Finally an inspiration struck the cabinet, and "Lest We Forget" was born and approved.

And so, "Lest We Forget" it is—the name of the picture compiled from many thousands of feet of film taken overseas during the war, and crisscrossed into a connected and coherent story of Canadian war effort, is designed to bring home to the Canadian public the stupidity and fruitlessness of war. The picture is being presented and will have its premiere early in the new year under the auspices of the Canadian Legion.

The production is of feature length, dividing the war into three definite periods.

In all sequences the cost of war is vividly illustrated.

Western Lambs Again Sent To Ontario For Finishing

The experiment of bringing western range lambs down to Ontario for finishing which was started last year is being repeated this year in a much larger way. At the present time close to 7,000 lambs are on feed with some 65 farmers. Twenty-four carloads of lambs, from 19 western sheep ranches, are now scattered throughout central and eastern Ontario and will be marketed as soon as they reach proper weights.

Notable Progress Made by Royal Bank of Canada

Deposits Increase $50,000,000—Liquid Assets $382,172,287
—Profits Down Slightly After Heavier Taxes

The financial statement of The Royal Bank of Canada for the year ended November 30, 1934, reflects a period of improved business conditions. Figures of total assets, deposits, cash, investments, commercial loans and note circulation all show an increase during the year.

Total assets are $758,423,904 of which $382,172,287 are liquid, being 50.16% of total liabilities to the public, compared with 50.74% a year ago. Cash, cheques and bank balances aggregate $105,683,081 or 24.35% of public liabilities.

Government and municipal securities have increased during the period from $113,762,602 to $135,220,489.

Big Gain In Deposits

The outstanding feature of the statement is the increase of $50,545,510 in public deposits. Of this increase it is understood that $41,347,334 in Canada, the balance abroad. Canadian savings deposits being up $11,128,336.

After a steady decline in commercial loans of banks in Canada over the period of the past few years, it is encouraging to note as further evidence of business revival, that the Royal Bank's figures under this heading show an increase of $10,092,484, the total standing at $228,942,028.

Profits for the year were $4,398,217 but are not properly comparable with published profits for the previous year, because heretofore they were reported after deducting Provincial taxes but before Federal taxes. For the sake of uniformity, and the fuller information of shareholders, both classes of taxes are now disclosed in the published report.

During the year under review Dominion Provincial taxes aggregated $1,075,018. Making allowance for the increase under this heading, profits are lower by $208,448. Net profits, after taxes, covered dividend requirements of $2,800,000, annual contribution of $200,000 to Officers' Pension Fund, the usual appropriation of $200,000 for Federal Reserve, and left a surplus of $123,300 to be added to Profit and Loss Account, increasing that account to $1,556,804 to be carried forward to the next fiscal year.

The showing, while gratifying to the shareholders, will this year be of special interest to the public, as it affords perhaps the most striking evidence given of the extent of the improvement in trade throughout Canada.

The Annual General Meeting of shareholders will be held at the Head Office of the bank in Montreal on Thursday, January 10th.

The principal accounts, with comparative figures for the year, are as follows:

	1934	1933

Investigates Sound On How Sound Waves Function

Discovery of new principles of how sound waves act, used in a way never before, making speakers better heard in halls to improved understanding of chemical compounds, won the $1,000 prize of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The winner was Prof. Vern Oliver Knudsen, chairman of the department of physics of the University of California at Los Angeles. His paper was entitled "The Absorption of Sound in Gases."

The prize was awarded annually by the association for a noteworthy scientific paper on the program of the annual meeting, and is usually given to a comparatively young scientist rather than a man who already has attained eminence. Prof. Knudsen is 41. He is married and has three children.

Prof. Knudsen has found that oxygen in the air plays the most important part in the dying away of some sound because it absorbs sound very rapidly. Also moist air usually transmits sound better than dry air. For each different pitch or frequency of sound there is a different degree of humidity or moistness of the air which absorbs the sound most rapidly.

Air can be "conditioned" for best possible hearing conditions, it was explained, for Prof. Knudsen has found a way to calculate the "acoustic transparency" or rate at which sound will die away in air, at any temperature or degree of humidity.

Oldest Resident

Ontario Citizen Able To Thread Needle At Age Of 111

Dionne quintuplets of Callander, Ont., have been in the public eye since they were born seven months ago. But less than 10 miles from their birthplace is a man who lived past the century mark to become a figure in the news.

John Birch is his name. He lives at North Bay. His age is 111. He is probably the oldest person in Canada.

John Birch celebrated his 111th birthday on June 4 last, just a week after the quintuplets were born.

He is a native of Sebastopol, a seafarer of the Ottoman wars and has been in Canada since 1866. His eyesight is so keen he was able to thread a needle on his birthday. He didn't even require help as he walked down some steps off a veranda.

Scattered across Canada are a number of persons well beyond the age of 100. For its population, Nova Scotia boasts an impressive number of centenarians. When the old age pensions act there went into effect last spring, 10 persons in that category were included.

The Indian elephant ranks third highest among intelligent animals, the chimpanzee is first and the orang-utan second.

The temperature seven miles above the earth is nearly constant, according to scientific belief.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON
JANUARY 13

PETER'S GREAT AFFIRMATION

Golden text: "And Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." Matthew 16:16.

Lesson: Matthew 16:13-28; Luke 9:18-36; 1 Peter 2:5, 6.

Devotional reading: Psalm 34:1-4.

Explanations And Comments

Peter's Great Affirmation of Faith, Luke 9:18-20. Now it happened that while Jesus was praying by himself, his disciples were beside him (Moffatt translation). "Suddenly he turned to them and asked, 'Who do the multitudes say that I am?'" Very readily they answered, "John the Baptist; others, Elijah; and yet others, one of the old prophets." Mt. 4:14 adds "Jeremiah." Recall how Herod had called Jesus John the Baptist, Mt. 14:2.

"There was no man then living with whom he could be compared. When we want to stir men's hearts, we appeal to the dead; when we search for the great, we descend into the grave, and talk of Shakespeare and Caesar, of Charlemagne and Alfred the Great, of Lincoln and Webster, do not use the name of a man living. That is what the Jews did. This tells very clearly that to them Jesus was a man of tremendous power." (C. E. Jefferson).

But who say that I am? continued Jesus. The ye is Shakespeare; But ye, who do ye say that I am? And Peter, as spokesman for the twelve, answered, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Living God," is Matthew's report of his words. "The Christ" of God, the carpenter, the familiarity of daily intercourse, the shocks of disapproval, the delay of hopes making the least slip, the haughty reputation of Jesus by the authorized teachers of Israel, the subtlest of his unpopularity in Galilee, might have almost justified a fisherman's inability to decide this momentous question.

But, in spite of all, in spite of all doubts and dreadful uncertainties, there was that in Simon's soul which recognized the reality of the Master's word—wholeheartedness and a sudden sense of the greatness of the thing in which he was called upon to believe. He was trampled down all doubts, and burst out in enthusiastic confession of faith and loyalty. (Wm. A. Crist).

An Extraordinary Figure

Lloyd George Is Man World Cannot Ignore

It was a summer afternoon in 1890 when Mr. Gladstone, in frockcoat and tea-rose, complimented Mr. Lloyd George, fresh from a by-election in Carnarvon. In the long years between the two reigns of British sovereigns have died, the British Empire has fought two wars, dynasties and nations have disappeared, the map of the world has been changed. Yet now we read that this same Lloyd George, whose voice has sounded through all this din of four decades of world upheaval and revolution, is to launch a new political movement. In his 71st year, veteran of a thousand fights, he is "hacking on his hammer."

No need to ask of the movement which Lloyd George is to lead. The arresting thing here is not the movement, but the man; this beginning of a new chapter in the story of a leader whose career defies definition. Men admire Lloyd George passionately, or hate him violently; it is impossible to ignore him. Whatever history's final verdict upon him, whatever it may decide about his policies and his motives, he will have to be one of the most extraordinary figures of his time.—Ottawa Journal.

Science Claims To Have Proved Authenticity Of It

Science, with the aid of infra-red rays, claims to have proved the authenticity of the Divine Shroud, a possession of the Italian royal family. Infra-red photographs taken of the Shroud and the Tunic—a relic accepted by the Roman Catholic church as the actual Tunic worn by Christ when bearing the Cross to Calvary—show blood stains on both garments.

Experts claim that the marks on both relics correspond with the Biblical details of the Agony of Christ. On the Shroud there are traces of the flagellation. The Tunic shows traces of a shoulder wound, which, it is claimed, was undoubtedly made by the weight of the Cross.

Leaves Its Mark

Criminologists have discovered a new crime detection method by which it is claimed one can establish reasonably definitely who fired "the gun." The method is based upon the fact that fine quantities of nitrates and pyrites which are the combination products of gunpowder are deposited upon the hands of anyone who fires a revolver or pistol.

England has now only one maker of hand-made sails. C. Williams turns out 50 pounds of giant barges sails in eight hours.

Little Journeys In Science

SULPHUR

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

Sulphur is an element which occurs abundantly and is widely distributed in nature. In the free state, that is uncombined with other elements, it is found in volcanic districts of Italy, Sicily, Iceland, Mexico and other countries. Native sulphur is abundant in Sicily and in the United States.

Sulphur in the combined state, that is joined with other elements, is much more common and widely distributed than native sulphur. It is found chiefly as sulphides and sulphates. Sulphides are chemical compounds containing sulphur, and one other element, usually a metal. Many sulphide minerals are of great value to man, such as iron pyrites, copper pyrites, zinc sulphide or blende, lead sulphide or galena, and mercuric sulphide or cinnabar. Iron pyrites looks very much like gold and hence is called "fool's gold."

Sulphates are found in vast quantities, both in the earth's crust and in sea-water. Calcium sulphate or gypsum is one of the most important of the sulphates. Millions of tons of gypsum are mined every year, and it is used in agriculture and in the manufacture of plaster-of-Paris.

Sulphur compounds are also found in the vegetable and animal kingdoms. Sulphur is thus an essential part of most forms of life. Sulphur compounds are found in garlic, onions, hair, wool, the blood and other parts of most forms of life. Sulphur is also found in petroleum and in coal. It is an undesirable substance in most of these materials, and it is injurious to boilers and grate-fires.

Sulphur has many important commercial uses. It is used to produce sulphur dioxide gas, which is used in making sulphuric acid. Sulphur is also used for making matches, and in the manufacture of gunpowder, vulcanized rubber, and matches. It is also used extensively in the manufacture of insecticides for use in orchards and vineyards. The chief sulphur insecticide is known as lime-sulphur spray. It is produced by boiling sulphur in lime water. The result is a deep-red liquid. This liquid is an excellent insecticide, especially for the control of the scale insect. It can also be used as a fungicide.

Gift Of Tea For Queen

Century Of Production Marked By Empire Tea Garden

Last year was the centenary of the tea-growing industry in the British Empire, and the tea-producers of the Empire have celebrated it by presenting to the Queen a casket holding 15 pounds of the finest tea. This is a lovely thing made of Bombay rosewood inlaid with Ceylon satinwood and ebony, and the tea inside is unique. It is blended from 15 of the finest known teas, seven from India, seven from China and seven from East Africa.

One of the components of this rare mixture is a tea from Darjeeling, which looks more like tobacco than tea, and is described as having a "very fine" flavor. It is probably the most expensive tea in the world, $3.25 a pound, and is used in minute quantities for flavoring teas of humble vintage.

Queer Religious Rite

Devotees Of Deity In India Have Long Task

For five days unusual religious celebrations are taking place in the South Indian town of Ellore in connection with the worship of the deity Sri Rama. Each devotee is required to write the name of Sri Rama ten million times, the belief being that this gives salvation to the writer. The process takes each devotee years to accomplish. The writing is done in specially prepared books, with rules and columns, so as to make counting easy. All books of devotees are placed near the image and worshipped, with flowers and chanting, for a number of days. The books, along with the image are taken out in procession. After the celebration the books are taken to a sacred temple of Sri Rama and offered to the god.

Just Name Of Book

The Last of the Mohicans, says Gladys Tantaquidgeon, is just the name of a book, and she should know whereof she speaks. Being a full-blooded Mohican, a "Mohican" you will, Miss Tantaquidgeon was named by the United States government to take a census of the tribe's numbers in New England. Her survey showed 175 of them living in that territory.

They made their first camp at Box Springs, a little alkali-marked "draw" where the thirsty ponies and burros at first refused to drink the white-encrusted water in the shallow pools. The three men had to boil every drop before drinking and even then Dustin could not swallow the bitter stuff till Kane flung into it some slices of the sour cholla buds that made it drinkable.

It was a cold camp where the wind drove down on them in a steady gale while the hobbled ponies stood with their tails against the wind. Dustin sought his blankets early and lay with a pipe between his teeth thinking his unhealthy thoughts. So intent was he on his plans that he did not even realize that even then he had his choice.

Kane pulled him from his blankets at dawn and again they headed westward against the line of the blue foot hills. In that wild tangle of mesquite and aspen and madroña Dustin reflected any man might be pardoned for not being sure of his own property lines. This might or might not be Hour-glass land.

All that day they rode slowly up the slope; they headed long "draws" and followed devious trails that hung to the hillside as a man's ephraim clinging to his face till finally, on a bluff point that overlooked the valley of the Stinking Water, old Kane shouted for a halt.

"Right down there's where Corse an' Gray were at work," he said and jerked a finger toward the dark where a deep canon cut into the hillside like a cut in a cake. Those words changed Sam Dustin's mind into adamant.

Till then he had sought some elusive scheme by which he could forego his first resolve; some other way to insure old Kane's silence. Now he knew there was no other way. Old Kane knew what he knew, sooner or later, he would tell and it told then he, Dustin, and Goddard would certainly go to jail for ten or maybe twenty years. There was no help for it now.

"That 'ere valley's a good place to camp if you kin drink that stinkin' sulphur water that it's named fer," said Kane.

"How far is it to the claim?" asked Dustin.

"Not more'n a thousand yards," Kane headed his pony down the hill and waved to the lolling Peyotl to drive the burros into camp.

"They came in with dropping heads and quivering backs for that last day's march had taken toll of them."

"Three days' march fer us," wheezed old Kane, "and not more'n twelve miles as the crow flies from the Hour-glass. Wouldn't old man Joe Carr give a man-sized drink to know what we know about what lies at hand under his land?"

To Dustin's queasy conscience it seemed that Kane was just clamoring for trouble. He felt sick at heart. The day was warm and there was a pleasant smell of madroña and juniper on the wind but the day seemed dank and dark to him. He felt sick and he noticed that the palms of his hands were wet with sweat.

The thing that he meant to do made him sick at heart; yet he felt not the slightest hesitation about doing it. He had to do it or... go to jail, maybe for life! Once or twice there came to him memories of other days! Memories that he had, more or less necessarily, since till now, he remembered his Alaska trip in '98 and the heart-breaking trail over Chilkoot. He could never forget Bender. They had caught Bender stealing flour when a pound of flour was worth a man's life and Bender had paid the price. He remembered that Bender, before they shot him, had told them that some day they would regret it.

He wondered vaguely why he should think now of Bender... Kane had stolen no food as Bender had! Kane had... Wait! Just now he remembered what I tell you, Dustin, about keepin' your men off the Hour-glass stock till we git this mess straightened out.

Dustin sat down on a big boulder and made some rapid calculations. There was no water in this canon. Then they could not run a table; a wulley table that runs with little water and less work. The best they could do would be to dam Cholo Canon, next across the ridge; pump the water over here and work a table. Maybe set up a four-head stamp-mill and table the dirt. He knew that the very first burro-load of ore sent to a smelter would give the whole thing away and there would be a rush to that canon that would throw into the shade the run to Thompson.

He had taken part in that rush and he remembered it well. Of course, old Kane was quite right about Miners' Law. Kane had located that ore-lead and he was entitled to follow it, but... Was it actually on Hour-glass land? If it was, there might be a fight. But there was a question about it. With so much land up here, it was almost impossible that a man should know his lines. He said as much to Kane. The old man laughed grimly.

"If you're honest about that... an' I don't it most damably... it ain't likely you're honest about land than cattle. If you'll steal Joe Carr's cows, you'll steal his land... If, I say, you're honest about that, then the best thing to do is to see old man Carr. If he's properly approached, he'll probably sell mineral rights on a royalty basis. It'll be better to git a share than have a fight in court."

Dustin snorted. "If you even try to talk to Joe Carr you'll give the whole thing away. Just one word dropped to him'll give him the information he needs. Once he learns there's pay-dirt on the land of the Hour-glass there'll be one hell of a row and don't you forget it. We'll say nothin' to Carr. Let's get back to camp. We've got to get some stakes and locate the claim before he learns about it."

They headed back for camp and Dustin spent the last hours of daylight splitting and facing a half-dozen stakes from a dead juniper tree. The moon presently came up, a great yellow ball over the eastern ridges and the hobbled ponies wandering through the brush sounded like an avalanche in the stillness.

Dustin eyed Peyotl. All was going as he wished. Peyotl had found the heap of cigarettes and dops and had on. It was not much; just a form of "glory hole" with which Dustin was perfectly familiar. Kane had cut back into the hillside for some eight or ten feet and laid bare a vein of rock. He had followed that vein in his wandering and had crossed-out a heading to intercept the vein at a turn in the slope and he had stripped a vein at sight of which Dustin knew a little of ores and ore-values, whistled. That vein and all above it was gold! Gold clear up to the grass-roots!

"I tried to fill it up again after I'd picked up the vein," said Kane, "but it was too much work. There's no danger of anybody stumbling on it up here anyway. There's mighty little water! none in this canon. That's why Gray an' Corse was rustlin' to the east. Cattle don't come up this canon much. If there ain't any Hour-glass cattle here, you men don't business here either." He chuckled in gentle laughter. "You better mind what I tell you, Dustin, about keepin' your men off the Hour-glass stock till we git this mess straightened out."

Dustin sat down on a big boulder and made some rapid calculations. There was no water in this canon. Then they could not run a table; a wulley table that runs with little water and less work. Kane led the way across the flat to the lip of the canon where a line of juniper trees showed their tops above the edge.

"It's down in the bottom," he said bridle. "You can't see the place from here. I'll show you."

Dustin followed him down the shaly bank and, as he scuffled along the slope, his mind concentrated, not on what Kane was to show him but on what he himself intended to do. Obviously it must be done back in camp when Peyotl had been given time to get under the influence of the drug that had been so artfully placed for him. Would Kane fight? Would he suspect anything? Dustin felt that he could not endure a struggle. Would any part of his plan that involved Peyotl miscarry? If it did, the whole plan must be rearranged. His nerves were frayed to do this, but Kane, stepping at the foot of the steep incline, turned on him sharply.

"Look there..."

His hand pointed to a red spot on the hillside fifty yards down the canon.

smoked himself into a Nirvana of his own. He was lying back on one back-side, his feet on another and was staring straight up at the stars that winked at them through miles of windy space. Peyotl had passed into that drug-induced sleep that would last till the cold of early dawn would awaken him. After that he would be violently ill. From time to time Dustin could see him shiver and he knew well enough what was taking place. Under that potent drug the fool who used it was suffering worse tortures than De Quincey ever knew. Those tortures would drag him through the Seven Hells of terrified sleep in which his feet were clogged, his mind alert. He could see and feel things that he could not avoid. Dustin's blood ran cold as he contemplated his victim... for in his plan Peyotl and not old Kane was the real victim.

A voice as loud as a shout suddenly assailed his ears. A voice to which he had never listened screaming at him through years of a questionable past. He had not heard his conscience for many years and he did not know it now. But it shrieked a question in his startled ears. Why do this thing? What could it avail him?

The answer came after years of hell!

Of old Kane went back to civilization with what he knew; if he talked to men he knew in Seco; and a drunken prospector was bound to know of all that they had heard of all that they had heard of so many years. For just one brief moment what had been his better self appealed to him... Was it not better to let old Kane go free? He was not better to give up what he had so disabably worked to be able to sleep at night than to have forever as his sleeping and waking companions those eerie sounds that conscience could conjure up? For just one brief moment those thoughts came to him.

He saw a line of blank gray walls at Florence with armed wardens pacing the crests of those walls. He saw himself in a striped suit wielding a heavy hammer. Instantly he threw the thought aside and came back to an earthly earth. That fate should never be his! Dad Kane and Joe Carr could go to hell.

He would take Edith Carr! In that moment her radiant beauty shone out in a moment of irradiated passion. He had seen her many times, women and he knew that what had won them would win her. A little force and a few ideas given judiciously would win any woman. And after this question of property was settled, he would have a stranglehold on her. No decent woman would see her father ruined rather than marry a personable man who could and would save that father!

He also saw the quivering Peyotl, then strode back to the fire and lit his pipe with a half-dead ember. Suddenly he made up his mind. This was the time.

"Hey, Dad!" he called. "Dad Kane... Wake up..."

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

BIRTHDAY

Another twelve-month ends, and so
An ordered rack to ponder on.
It stands twelfth memory's lengthening row
Of years that now are past and gone.

Such happy days, such golden years,
Brimmed up with all the hopes of youth
Which over Earth with glad eyes peers
To find there only bias and truth.
Each birthday, though it mark the close
Of one more circle round the sun,
Brings no regrets one might suppose
Would come with any journey done.

For each has added to the store
Of all the self has yet attained;
Each brings some sacrifice, some loss
Of courage or of freedom gained.

Of narrow ways none need complain
With grief at time too fleetly run,
Brings no regrets one might suppose
Would come with any journey done.

Another journey round the sun!

Guess Basis Is Wrong
A man on a farm near Duluth sold a cow for her value as beef because he thought her a poor producer. The new owner had tests made of her production and found that while quantity was small butter fat was so high that sold on this basis, it returned in one month nearly twice the amount paid for the animal. Dairy farmers and poultry raisers should not run their business on the guess basis.

Roads Lighted At Night

United States And Britain Using Sodium-Vapour Lamps

Half a mile of roadway in Schenectady, U.S.A., which possesses one of the most modern power stations in the world, has been illuminated by sodium-vapour lamps. They are placed at distances varying from 125 to 200 feet apart and are monochromatic—that is, of one color. In this they differ from daylight, which is a composition of many colors. "Monochromatic" has many advantages over other forms of artificial lighting; it reveals greater detail, cuts out shadows on the roadway, is cheaper and more efficient. The first chapter at a sodium-vapour lamp makes one think that it is dimmer than the tungsten-flament incandescent lamp, but this is merely because a greater proportion of the glare has been eliminated. Actually these lamps give two and a half times the output of the other type. They are now being tried out on sections of British roadway, and though slightly more expensive to install, are cheaper to run and maintain, and by giving daylight illumination should result in fewer road accidents.

Has Narrowest Parish
Clergyman's Charge Is 1,200 Miles Long By Six Feet Wide
The Rev. Henry Moss, a young Canadian clergyman, has been put in charge of what he claims is the longest and narrowest parish in the world. It is 1,200 miles long and about six feet broad. Mr. Moss is chaplain of the Irsk Petroleum Company, and his duty is to minister to the men engaged on the construction of two pipe-lines running respectively from Kirkuk to Tripoli and Kirkuk to Haifa. His headquarters are at St. Luke's Church, Haifa. He travels regularly along the two lines which traverse the desert. A branch of "To H" has already been formed in the "parish," and it recently received a visit from the founder-padre, the Rev. "Tubby" Clayton.

Synthetic Vitamins
Isolation Of A More Vigorously Acting Type Of Vitamin D
Isolation and synthetic production of a new, more vigorously-acting type of vitamin D, the "sunshine vitamin," was announced at the basic science laboratory of the University of Cincinnati.

Vitamin D is the bone-growth producing, ricket-preventing organic chemical compound produced in nature by the action of the rays of the sun.

Dr. George Sperti, head of the laboratory and authority on irradiation, announced its subdivision and production synthetically by irradiation with selected wave-lengths of ultra-violet light.

HOLY LANDS' OLD HATREDS
GIVE WAY BEFORE FRIEND-LY CODE OF BOY SCOUTS

That the youth of Palestine—Jewish, Moslem and Christian—are forgetting the age-old antagonisms and hatreds of their elders and accepting and living the brotherhood code of the rapidly growing Boy Scout movement, was the statement of Stephen A. Haboub, world traveler, and formerly a Galilean shepherd, a recent visitor to Ottawa.

"The Boy Scout movement in Palestine is breaking down the religious and racial barriers that have existed throughout the centuries, and already has eliminated many bitter prejudices and misunderstandings between Moslem, Christian and Jewish boys," the visitor from Palestine declared.

"When I was a youth, Moslem and Christian boys never thought of greeting one another with a friendly word. We were enemies, by virtue of ancestry and religious beliefs, and when we met it usually was to fight."

"Today, thanks to the Boy Scout movement, boys from Moslem, Jewish and Christian homes are meeting on a basis of mutual brotherhood and understanding. Through their association in Scouting, and instruction in the world brotherhood principles of the Boy Scouts' code, the boys are learning to play the game of life together, and to forget the differences of race and creed."

This was true not only in Palestine, according to Mr. Haboub, but equally amongst the youth of Transjordan, Syria and Iraq, and promised to play a possibly important part in the ultimate solution of the racial and religious problems of the Near East.

The school, colleges and universities established by missionaries and missionary societies were credited by Mr. Haboub with fostering the development of the various Boy Scout troops. St. George's Cathedral and School

COWLEY HAPPENINGS

Another of Alberta's pioneers has been removed from our midst, in the person of Remi Dionne, who died at his ranch home in the Porcupine Hills on Sunday night. The remains were laid to rest in Cowley cemetery this forenoon, Rev. Father O'Dea performing the last rites. Mr. Dionne was ill only a short while when death claimed him, after living an active life to a ripe old age. He leaves a wife and large family of children to mourn his loss.

A Doukhobor woman named Mrs. George Maloff passed away last week, and was buried in the Doukhobor cemetery west of town on Saturday afternoon. The weather was extremely rough and cold, with a drifting blizzard sweeping in full force as a funeral train of a dozen or more rigs full of people followed the departed to her last resting place. Mrs. Maloff died in a Lethbridge hospital a few hours after an operation had been performed for inward poitrie. She is survived by her husband, two sons and one little crippled daughter.

Mrs. Robert Littleton entertained the Cowley ladies' bridge club at her home on Tuesday evening, with prizes being won by Mrs. Littleton and Mrs. I. Christie. A dainty luncheon was served at midnight by the hostess.

A change to mild weather is now quite welcome, after sixteen continuous days of exceedingly rough and stormy weather.

After being vacated for a year and a half, the Busy Store is now occupied by M. A. Murphy, who has moved the postoffice and his general stock of merchandise there.

At Jerusalem and the American University at Beirut were mentioned as notable active sponsors of the movement.

NEW YEAR RESOLUTIONS

Every time the first of January comes around, people have fun with New Year resolutions. Some have fun making them, and some have fun making fun of the ones other people make; in either case, there is a general recognition of the fact that New Year's Day is a good time to make a fresh start in one direction or another, and the resolutions are treated humorously, because we have learned that flesh is frail and that the high resolves of January first are apt to be back among the moth balls by the time the month is over.—EX.

At the regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the United church this week, the following officers were elected for the year: Mrs. W. Prescott, president; Mrs. F. Padgett, financial secretary; Mrs. J. Christie, recording secretary. At the close of the business part of the meeting, Mrs. J. Curry, retiring president, was presented with a beautiful pyrex pie plate for services rendered during the past two years. Mrs. Curry thanked the ladies for their loyal support during her term of office, and also for the gift. Mrs. Upton was also presented with a beautiful bouquet of carnations. The meeting was concluded with the serving of refreshments.

A young woman was extremely vain of the honors conferred upon two distant male relatives. She talked on the subject to all and sundry: "I have two relatives in the House of Lords. Have you any?"

"No," replied one of her acquaintances, "but I have three maiden aunts in the Kingdom of Heaven."

Bright Stories
about WineTHE ROMANS INTRODUCED WINE
INTO ENGLAND

● Before Boadicea, the British warrior queen, revolted against the Romans, having first sought counsel of her country's gods, as the poet tells us, the Romans had imported wine into England: It was the first importation. The date is unknown, records for the time and many succeeding centuries being obscure. People in those days had little idea of what we some thousand or two years later would consider important or interesting, and perhaps they were too busy, too engrossed with their own daily affairs, to write history.

● But we do know that before the Norman Conquest, the drinking of wine, and consequently the importing of wine, had been generally established. In 1152 an event took place that was to influence history in several departments. Henry Plantagenet, who was to become Henry II, took for his wife Eleanor of Aquitaine, and in consequence thereof some of the finest vineyards of France came under English rule and remained for three centuries.

● It was thus the claret trade began so far as English consumption is concerned, for the name, originally suggesting clarity or clearness, came to be applied particularly to the red wine from Bordeaux. It was to be driven into obscurity from time to time by livelier wines, only to be revived within the memory of many readers, no doubt, by Mr. Gladstone who liked it for its mildness.

BAR PROFESSORS

FROM POLITICS

Decision of the Board of Governors of the University of Alberta to prohibit permanent members of the staff from engaging in any manner whatsoever in provincial politics and accepting a candidature in federal elections has aroused considerable controversy in Edmonton.

The Board's action, passed on recommendation of Dr. R. C. Wallace, president of the University, will prevent Dr. W. H. Alexander, head of the department of classics, from accepting the C.C.F. candidature in West Edmonton.

Dr. Wallace, in explaining the Board's action, stated that University authorities did not believe a university professor should be at all engaged in provincial politics due to the dependency of the institution on the provincial government and the connection between university and provincial administration. A member of his staff, Dr. Wallace felt, could not hold a federal seat and tend to his professional duties properly.

FOR SCOTS IN CANADA HOGMANAY

Noo, tho ye come frae Glesca, Auld Reekie or Dundee—
Or e'en frae Fife or Aberdeen, coo hame this night wi' me;
O' if the blood o' Scotland's rirs fast throughout your veins—
Come, come wi' me, fu' merrily we love and honor reigns.

E'en tho it be a But and Pen, a cat or mansion grand
Let lika Scot in Canada, tak ane anither's hand.

O let oor spirits tak their flight across the ocean blue—
Tae meet the freens we miss sae airt, auld freens sae leal and true.

And when the auld'oon clock shall chime the last 'oor o' the year
We'll clasp the hands o' those we love, aye, maybe drap a tear;
Then, when the bells begin-tae ring, we'll sing like Scots sae braw
The song that fondly bids 'A Guid New Year' tae ane and a'.

'Tis then the band will strike the chords o' music soft, sublime,
And once again we'll sing wi' glori, "The Days o' Auld Lang Syne."
We'll stop awae, and start again, the auld folks' smile we'll see
As granny sings "Auld Robin Gray," an' "Scotland's Hills for Me."

And noo again to God we raise our voice in solemn prayer:
Tae ask His blessin', on us a'—that we may sin nae mair.
Again the strains o' music, fu' aye softly on the ear—
"Abide with Me," "Lead Kindly Light" throughout the coming year.

Then Scots throughout all Canada, join wi' me when I say
A Guid New Year tae ane an' a', this Happy Hogmanay;
And may we in oor fancy meet—wi' a' oor ain folk dear
Tho, yet they seem sae faur awa, oor hearts are ever near.

CANADA FLOUR MILLS CAN SUPPLY THE ENTIRE WORLD

Ottawa.—If every flour mill in Canada worked 24 hours a day, the combined output would be enough to supply the import requirements of the British empire three times over and in most years the entire world. This evidence of the enormous potential capacity of the Canadian flour industry was given to the royal commission on mass buying at the outset of its investigation into milling and baking.

Canada has too many flour mills in comparison to available export markets, was the effect of a report submitted by W. J. Peaker, special investigator, of Ottawa. Although the number of mills has fallen since 1919, there remains a vast surplus capacity in the industry, due largely to the war-time and post-war boom days.

The Canadian industry is dominated by five companies, the "Big Five" as they are called—Lake of the Woods Milling Co. Ltd., Maple Leaf Milling Company, Ogilvie Flour Mills, Robin Hood Flour Mills and Western Canada Flour Mills. In the past five years, Ogilvie and Western Canada had net profits of $4,017,000 and $199,300 while Maple Leaf had a loss of $5,303,200 and Lake of the Woods $774,000. Peaker said the large loss by the Maple Leaf Company resulted, in part, from speculation in grain and necessitated adjustments in the capital structure.

Some of the large companies, in addition to milling flour have subsidiary baking plants, bag factories, steamship lines and grain elevators. The income is lumped together, leading Peaker to say:

"They are in a position in some instances of being able to sell flour at a figure below cost and still show a profit on all transactions. The effect of this, it would appear, would be a disturbing factor in the economic structure of the industry, particularly when it is considered that not all the large mills are so situated and very few of the small mills. In fact, one company, taking their business as a whole, could quote prices consistently under other mills and still not be selling at a loss, all activities being considered."

The probe into the milling and baking industry will last several days and is considered one of the most important handled by the commission.

Canadians In Saar Vote

Inquiry To Be Made At Coming Session Of Parliament

Ottawa.—Inquiry will be directed to the government at the coming session of parliament about residents of Canada going to the Saar basin to vote on the coming plebiscite as to whether that territory should return to German jurisdiction.

J. A. Mercier (Liberal, Laurier-Outremont), has given notice of a question asking if the government is aware some residents of Canada have gone to the Saar to vote, if government officials have been asked to help in any way, if so, the names and addresses of the people assisted and whether any step will be taken to have their names removed from the voters' list in Canada by reason of their voting in a foreign country.

Caribou Migration

Countless Animals Pass Lonely Edmonton Cabin For Three Weeks

Edmonton.—Day and night for three weeks, seven files of caribou marched past the lonely northern cabin of Frank Conibear, trapper, as they migrated toward their winter feeding ground, he reported. He estimated that every 24 hours, 50,000 animals passed in single file down the seven trails in sight.

Furs generally are scarce this year, reports from the Northwest Territories indicate, although skins are of a higher grade than usual. Mink are particularly scarce.

Quintuplets Receive Chairs

Fort Erie, Ont.—A peculiarly shaped crate that entered Canada through this border port excited unusual attention from customs officials. Upon inspection it was found to contain five high chairs equipped with the latest gadgets for elevating, folding or converting into little "sitting room" chairs. They are the gift of a Cleveland furniture firm to the Dionne quintuplets at Callander, Ont.

Anglo-Irish Trade

Free State To Take British Cattle In Exchange For Cattle

London.—A "gentlemen's agreement" whereby the Irish Free State will import a larger quantity of British cattle in exchange for correspondingly increased imports of Irish cattle by Britain was announced recently.

The agreement between the two governments concerned was believed to be as important step toward the re-creation of improved economic and political relations between the two countries.

Under its provisions, it is estimated that British cattle exports to the Free State will be increased by more than 1,000,000 tons. The anticipated increase in imports of Irish cattle was set by Irish authorities at 150,000 head over existing quota limits.

A further outcome of the agreement will be the cessation of Irish imports of coal from Germany and Poland as soon as Free State contracts with those countries expire. The coalfields principally concerned are in South Wales, Lancashire and southwest Scotland. It is expected it will be of special benefit to the distressed areas.

It is understood that imports of cattle will be exempt from the special duties imposed on produce from the Free State in connection with the land annuities dispute. In exchange, the Free State has agreed to exempt coal from the retaliatory duties it imposed on imports from Britain.

Child Smothered By Snow

Trapped In Play Tunnel When Sides Collapsed

Riviere Du Loup, Que.—A game played by every child who has lived in Canada in the winter time led to the death of Laval Lapointe, 11, and a narrow escape for his brother, Jean Charles, 13.

The two children of Alfred Lapointe built a snow fort and dug a tunnel under several feet of snow to use as an entrance. Then they decided to test the tunnel. Jean Charles had just got his head out of the mouth of the tunnel, his brother close behind him, when the sides caved in, imprisoning both.

Several hours later a neighbor, attracted by the cries of Jean Charles, ran to the scene and pulled him out, the lower part of his body badly frozen. Laval had been dead for some time, smothered by the snow.

A Labor Council

Winnipeg Civic Administration Expected To Favor Man On The Street

Winnipeg.—The predominant Labor power in Winnipeg's 1935 city council exerted its force at the inaugural meeting and took control of the city's standing administration committees. With Mayor John Queen at the helm and Labor representatives manning four of the six most important posts it was made clear at the first meeting that Winnipeg's official cart would follow charts favorable to "the man on the street," devising votes on committees on finances, improvement, health and utilities.

At the November elections Labor, Independent Labor and Communist candidates made up nine of the 18 council seats and with the Labor mayor at the helm, it was seen that Labor policies would be most favored.

Stratosphere Flight

Wiley Post To Attempt To Fly From Coast To Coast At High Altitude

Los Angeles.—Wiley Post, noted aviator, announced he would attempt within three weeks, to fly from Los Angeles to New York through the stratosphere.

Wearing his own designed "stratosphere oxygen suit," he said he expected to keep his ship, the Winnie Mae, at an altitude of at least 30,000 feet during the trip, which he estimated would require eight hours.

Post said he hoped to maintain a speed of not less than 350 miles an hour.

"I know that my oxygen suit will protect me from the cold and atmospheric conditions at 30,000 and 35,000 feet altitudes," he said.

Hundreds Attend Laying

Ottawa.—Nearly 700 attended the annual New Year's Day levee of the governor-general held in the Hall of Fame of the parliament buildings. It was the fourth of such receptions held by the Earl of Beesborough since coming to Ottawa in April, 1931, as representative of King George.

Day Of Prayer

Mayor McGeer Of Vancouver Issues A Proclamation

Vancouver.—Mayor G. G. McGeer set aside Sunday, Jan. 6, by proclamation, as a day of "service, humiliation and prayer," and invited all citizens, civic department heads, legislators, judges and magistrates, all other persons in authority and all loyal and law abiding people to assemble in their preferred places of worship that day.

He recommended a united cry for pardon in the belief "that we have fallen on evil days because we have forgotten God."

"May we not justly fear," he asked, "that the calamity of depression which now desolates the land and our community, was inflicted upon us for our presumptuous sins?"

YEAR JUST PAST PROVED ONE OF STEADY PROGRESS

Montreal.—A year of definite progress toward a better economic position in Canada is the description of 1934 running through many articles on the country's business and industrial life published in The Montreal Gazette's commercial and financial review.

"If the year 1934 failed to realize fully all the predictions of 1933 prophets," wrote Paul Bilkey, editor-in-chief, "it was nevertheless a year of progress."

Mr. Bilkey found large increases in the physical volume of business, in external trade, including higher exports of newsprint, pig iron, steel, etc., and an encouraging rise in volume of revenue freight carried by the railways. The improvement, however, was by no means general.

E. W. Beatty, K.C., chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, stated his view the recovery from the depression was coming about through slow rebuilding, rather than a boom.

Mr. Beatty was confident Canadian wheat would find a steady market at fair prices. He pointed to increased exports of minerals, lumber and bacon at better prices, "largely owing to the imperial trade agreements" and the newspaper industry as clear signs of recovery.

S. J. Hungerford, president of the Canadian National Railways, devoted his review to the operations of that system, pointing out an increase of approximately $16,000,000 in gross revenues.

There had been a significant substantial increase in the movement of manufactured products and merchandise, demonstrating increased business activity.

Yeggmen Blow Safe

Vancouver Store Robbed Of Jewelry To Value Of $12,000

Vancouver.—Jewelry valued at approximately $12,000 was stolen by burglars who rifled the factory safe of Jacoby Bros., Ltd., wholesale jewellers, overnight. The loss is covered by insurance. The robbery was discovered when the establishment was opened next morning.

The yeggmen forced entry into the safe by blowing off the dial. Another safe in the office, containing a similar amount of valuables, resisted the efforts of the robbers.

New Rule For Convicts

If Conduct Satisfactory Will Be Paid For Labor

Ottawa.—Convicts in Canadian penitentiaries will receive a money payment for their labor starting with the new year, Brig-Gen. D. M. Ormond, superintendent of penitentiaries, announced on the authority of Minister of Justice Hugh Guthrie. They will be paid at the rate of five cents a day for each day they work, provided their conduct and diligence in the part of convicts undergoing sentence and to provide them with a small sum of money with which to maintain themselves on their release until they can secure employment.

In addition to the five cents a day for actual work done the convicts will be allowed five cents a day for each day of remission they have earned at the time of their release in excess of 72 days. Under the rules convicts are entitled to six days' remission a month for good conduct until they have earned 72 days and thereafter to 10 days a month. A convict with 100 days' remission to his credit is released 100 days in advance of the normal expiration of his sentence.

Income Tax Payments Up

Substantial Increase Over Same Period Of Last Year

Ottawa.—Income tax collections for the first nine months of the present fiscal year ended December 31 amounted to $54,720,648, according to a statement issued by Minister of National Revenue R. C. Matthews. This compared with $54,511,087, collected in the same period last year, showing a net increase of $209,561. Toronto led in total collections with $18,988,168, a net increase of $1,337,117.

In other districts totals were: Vancouver, $3,797,797; Charlottetown, $261,684; Halifax, $893,182; Winnipeg, $1,676,786; Kingston, $159,161; Edmonton, $338,349.

Three New Titles

London.—New titles for the Prince of Wales were included in the king's New Year's honors list. His royal highness was made an admiral, a general and a marshal of the Royal Air Force.

Riots In Saar Territory

Nazis And Anti-Nazis Clash In Turbulent New Year Row

Saarbrücken, Saar Basin Territory.—Nazis and anti-Nazis in the Saar counted bullet wounds and bandaged heads after the turbulent opening of the New Year.

The League of Nations governing commission, meanwhile, moved to forestall further political strife, warning Nazis the order against political demonstrations bans any such routing welcome as was given the first Saarlanders arriving from abroad to vote in the plebiscite Jan. 13.

Thirty former Saar residents arrived from Chile and were quietly taken in taxis to their places of residence.

As reports of heated clashes throughout the territory continued to trickle into Saarbrücken, the toll of those injured in the last 48 hours was set at 100 or more. Two men were found dead—one stabbed, the other shot—but it was not certain their deaths resulted from political quarrels. The German front set its injured at 90.

The New Year's disorders brought the arrest of 50 persons, it was reported but not officially confirmed.

A PROGRAM OF REFORM URGED BY PREMIER BENNETT

Ottawa.—Ringing up the curtain on the 1935 general election campaign, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett announced his government would go to the people on a program of reform which he believed would bring prosperity and security against future depression. In what may be regarded as his most important public address since the 1930 campaign the prime minister declared the time had come for changing the economic system. He asked for support that the government might effect essential reforms which were delayed in the fight against the immediate problems of the depression.

"And in my mind," said the prime minister, "reform means government intervention. It means government control and regulation. It means the end of laissez faire. Reform heralds certain recovery. There can be no permanent recovery without reform. I raise the issue squarely. I nail the flag of progress to the masthead. I summon the power of the state to its position."

Opening a series of addresses in which he intended to lay the government's record and reform policies before the electorate, Mr. Bennett assured his listeners that there would be ample time for them to study the situation.

"You will have ample time to test this program of reform," said the prime minister, "and to decide upon its value. I will then invite your considered opinion as to whether reform is in fact necessary and whether my program of reform is wise."

"If you say 'yes' then I will not rest until I have put it into operation. But if you say 'no'—if you are satisfied with conditions as they now are—then I am not willing to continue in this office. If you believe things should be left as they are, I am not willing to continue in this office. If you believe things should be left as they are, I am not willing to continue in this office."

With the date for a general election remaining to be fixed with October as the latest and some speculations placing it as early as April, the prime minister's remarks were taken as an indication that polling would not come until late in the summer.

Harking back to the 1930 campaign, Mr. Bennett recalled his promise to end unemployment. "That was a definite undertaking," he declared, "and by it I stand. Unemployment in Canada to-day is one of the consequences of this awful and unprecedented world depression."

"The continued faulty operation of the international economic machine has made re-employment impossible. I do not offer that as an excuse. I state a fact. Now that the time has come I am determined to try with all my strength to correct the working of the system in Canada so present unemployment conditions may be put an end to."

"If we cannot abolish the dele we should abolish the system."

Since taking office the government's policies have been determined by the critical nature of circumstances. Emergency action was constantly demanded and there was no time, the prime minister said, for changes or reform of the economic system. "We had first to save the ship and guide it into less troubled waters."

DATE IS SET FOR THE OPENING OF ALBERTA HOUSE

Edmonton.—With discussions of municipal financing, of codes of industry, of the rural education situation and of possible changes in the Provincial Election Act scheduled, Alberta's legislature on February 7 will commence what promises to be one of the most important sessions in years. Additional importance will be lent by the fact that an election is due this year and probably will be held in June.

Reports gathered by a taxation inquiry commission after an exhaustive survey of conditions in the province will be laid before the members early in the session. Revision of the Debt Adjustment Act is likely, particularly in view of recent demands that provincial and federal legislation on debts be broadened.

Representing a "hang-over" from the last session when the special committee failed to agree, redistribution of provincial constituencies will be brought up, although there is doubt as to the progress likely to be made with this question. There have been repeated demands for reduction in the number of legislature seats.

Although the Trades and Industries Act was proclaimed last October, no codes have been made effective as yet. It is probable that there will be legislation concerning these in the session, which is likely to be a lengthy one.

Oppose St. Lawrence Plan

Legislative Committee Of Railway Brotherhoods Interview Government

Ottawa.—Continued opposition to the St. Lawrence deep waterways scheme, approval of the government's relief efforts and endorsement of a contributory national unemployment insurance act were features of the proposals submitted to Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and his associates at the joint legislative committee of the railway transportation brotherhoods.

After nearly two hours' discussion with the government heads the delegation left with assurances their proposals would be given consideration.

The railway men would have the senate's power to veto suspended in respect to a bill that has passed the commonsense twice; and broaden the scope of federal authority to enable it to enact social legislation for the benefit of the people as a whole and to regulate highway transport as a work "for the general advantage of Canada."

Other legislation requested would provide compensation for loss of property of employees forced to move because of the abandonment of railway divisional points, stations or mileage; required at least two men on all units of motive power and increase the federal treasury contribution to the level crossing elimination to $500,000 annually as at present, to $500,000.

Pilot Warns Of Fire

Flies Low To Awaken Residents In Ontario Village

Cleaveland, Ont.—Action of an unidentified aeroplane pilot in flying so low over this Kent county village that he awakened the residents probably saved property and life from fire here.

The pilot noticed the general store was on fire. He circled the village three times. The roar of the engines awakened the villagers and drew their attention to the fire.

Morley Shields, proprietor of the store, probably owes his life to the action of the pilot. When he was awakened in his living quarters above the store he found all means of escape except a window, were blocked. He saved his life by leaping to the ground.

The store was destroyed but volunteer firemen succeeded in saving nearby buildings.

Youngest Air Pilot

Brantford, Ont.—James Hamilton, 15-year-old, named collector of the year, believed to be Canada's second youngest aeroplane pilot, made two solo flights recently, ascending 2,600 feet on each occasion and making perfect landings. Blairmore came very near taking it from the Coleman Canadians, last year's champions, on Wednesday night last. It was 1-0 for Blairmore at the end of the first. Coleman were extremely lucky in getting three through in the second, for Blairmore held them down to no score in the third. And the only old timer against that totally intact machine was Dave Kemp, who played forward instead of his old capacity in goal. It was, without a doubt, the cleanest game ever witnessed on Coleman ice. W. Turner, of Blairmore, and the old war-horse, Bill Gates, of Coleman, refereed.

We regret that we overlooked making mention in our recent issues to the most attractive Christmas display presented by Dr. and Mrs. R. K. Little in front of their residence on State Street. People from all parts of the Pass came to Blairmore during the Christmas season for the express purpose of witnessing this delightful scene.
